THE CURRENCY QUESTION.

Notwithstanding the fact that thousands of our people are at present worrying themselves almost to death over this vexed question, even to the extent of neglecting their business, their homes and their duty to their families, there are still thousands upon thousands of smart, hard great Arkansas Valley, the Garden of the West, where the Atchison, Topeka & San-

3,500,000 acres of the finest farming lands

If you do not believe it, write to the un-

HOUSE.

WASHINGTON, D. C. May 9.—Mr. Boyd, from the committee on accounts, reported a bill directing the payment of committee clerks and pages, to be computed from the first day of the session. The bill gave rise to a long discussion, objection being made to it on the grounds that thirty days extra pay was voted for these employes at the close of the last congress and many of them would be receiving double pay for portions of the time. It was denounced by Mr. Sparks as outrageous. The house then went into committee of the whole and took up the senate bill authorizing the employment of three additional assistants in the library of congress. After a short debate the bill passed.

The house passed into the consideration of the resumption act, which Mr. Weaver characterized as another step in that trinity of infamies that had been fastened on Americans. As to the silver remonetization act passed a year ago he said the conspiracy had been entered into by the New York clearing house that silver should not be received unless it was to be paid back in kind. That had been done after a certain man who was now traveling abroad (Gen. Grant), had written a letter from Smyrna advising the business men of the country in case of the passage of the Bland bill to combine to defeat its operation. There had been a great deal of talk in the house about revolution, but as an ex-soldier who fought under Grant he must say that the advice to Americans to resist a constitutionally passed law by combining to defeat its operation amounted to revolution, and revolution of the highest order. [Applause on the democratic side.] Not only that, but the secretary of the treasury had struck hands with Wall and Lombard streets, and said that he would not pay out silver. He (Weaver) would offer at the proper time an amendment directing the secretary of the treasury to cause to be paid without discrimination the standard silver coin the same as the gold coin in the liquidation of coin obligations of the government. He denied that the greenback party was an inflation party. It was in favor of gold, silver and legal tender paper money, all issued by the government, not by banking associations, and all of full legal tender qualities.

Mr. Hielman opposed the bill. The best thing congress could do was to do nothing and go home; the world was governed too much, and the papering of the country with bills and resolutions might as well stop for a while.

Mr. Warner in the course of the day's debate said that he would demand the previous question on Tuesday next.

Mr. Kelley having obtained the floor the house adjourned.

SENATE.

The committee on epidemic diseases to day agreed on amendments in the nature of a substitute for the bill recently recommitted to them concerning a National Board of Health, and proposed the establishment of national quarantine regulations. The amendments confine the requirements of the bill to vessels coming from foreign ports where any contagious or infectious diseases exist, instead of referring as in the original bill to vessels coming from any foreign port, and provide that the quarantine regulations framed by the National Board of Health shall as far as possible be merely supplemental to the regulations prescribed by state and municipal authorities, and be confided to them for enforcement if they will so undertake. But in case of refusal or failure the president may detail an officer for that purpose. The section of the bill explicitly providing authority for the board of health to establish quarantine stations on railroads or river lines of inter state commerce and to detain goods and passengers for disinfection, is stricken out. The sections authorizing somebody to investigate the general effect of cattle diseases and to cause an inspection to be made of all animals arriving from or exported from different shipping ports of the United States, was also omitted from the amended measures, and an amendment of the appropriation asked by the original bill for expenditures by the National Board of Health to carry out its provisions is reduced from $650,000 to $500,000.

The consideration of the bill prohibiting military interference at the elections was then resumed.

Senator Edmunds called attention to certain clauses of the constitution, to various laws, and to writings of Hamilton and Madison as a foundation of his remarks on the bill, and said he had read from the constitution and from a series of laws on those points which bore on the power of the executive department to show that from the beginning the government had maintained that when there is law there must be power to carry it into effect, and there still existed express authority for the president to exert the military powers of the government wherever the execution of the law, on all occasions and everywhere is obstructed by combinations too powerful for the civil authorities to suppress, the United States marshals to command the necessary assistance in the performance of their duty, the power being the same in that of the sheriffs of the respective states. The executive was not a tyrant but a civil officer, and was authorized to exercise all the force at his command for the due execution of laws made in pursuance of the constitution which he is bound to protect, preserve and defend. The execution of peace was not arbitrary, the state of order and tranquility was found in the due enforcement of the laws. President Jackson announced the possession of the power conferred by the constitution and the laws passed in pursuance of it, when in 1833 the people of South Carolina set up their will and dominion against the execution of the national law. The same arguments and pretext, the same defense, the same claim of the exercise of state sovereignty and state rights, the same old heresies are reproduced on all occasions and often in the same language that was employed at that time. He repented there was express authority to exert all the force of which the republic is capable to prevent infractions of the law. If the elections fail or are prevented; what becomes of the republic and the liberty of the citizens? Justice may fail, the courts may be closed by armed bands, but when the power of law overcomes this opposition nobody has lost anything except by delay. But if you destroy the foundation of power the republic is at an end. If we, said Senator Edmunds, surrender at this time one thing esteemed to be so small by some and so great by those who seek to carry their scheme through, we surrender all. If you [illegible] in the title of a bill for fear the people will think you are opposed to liberty unless you pass a bill prohibiting military interference at elections the capture of power would be at a very cheap rate.

Senator Edmunds then proceeded to analyze the bill and said the preamble was contradictory of its body. The preamble declared that the presence of troops at the polls is contrary to the spirit of our institutions and the traditions of our people, and tends to destroy the freedom of elections, while the body of the bill declared troops might be present at the polls even on election days, even to the manner and under the circumstances for which the constitution provides. If the preamble be true the body is false. Senator Edmunds said in reply to the senators who had preceded him that the government does not exist a state. It is in every fibre and muscle of every man. He wished it was in the hearts of all men of the republic. The bill reflected the doctrines of those who supported it, namely: that this government, nearly a century old, hoary with renown, after so long vindicating this right to exist should be treated as an extraneous neighbor and sometimes as a friend or foe. I denounce such a doctrine. Men have denounced the affirmative power of the constitution to regulate the election of members of the house of representatives, and by sophistry they fritter away the traditions of the constitution and deny the teachings of its framers, and say there is no liberty unless it be obtained by the supremacy of state rights. Was there not a scheme on foot to prevent appeals from state to federal courts; thus taking away the rights of citizens? When are you going to stop? I have seen within the last two or three days in this chamber another step to deprive a portion of the people of their rights. I have seen a majority of this body enter upon the consideration of a measure violative of the traditions of the senate, the spirit of the constitution and the safety of the republic, and designed to overturn the decision that gave to the senator from Louisiana (Kellogg) his seat, in order that a different man may take his place. Do you in a mandatory manner, in your hour of triumph, intend to sweep away everything which the wisdom of our fathers achieved and their sons preserved? The bill before us was the first step in that direction. There is, somewhere in the constitution, miles we go into anarchy, a power, which, in spite of threats, will stand as a bulwark against the effort to break down the constitution and when you recover from your emotions you will have the peace of which the act of 1865 speaks. But you will have peace at the polls only when you recognize by deeds as well as by words the political equality of all citizens and the free right of lawfully voting under the law and for the law. It will not be the peace of a reign of terror and of the grave, but a peace of justice and liberty, asserted in legal form for the expression of the public will, when by gones will be by gones, and peace and harmony everywhere prevail.

Senator Edmunds was followed by Senators Blaine and Chandler. The debate then closed and the bill to prohibit military interference at elections passed in the precise form that it came from the house; yeas 33, nays 23. The senate then took up the house bill making appropriations for the legislative, executive and judicial departments of the government and then adjourned.

GENERAL NEWS.

Fanaticism.

COHASSET NARROWS, Mass, May 9.—An Advent minister, Charles Brown, is announced to address the Poessset adventists on Sunday. The people threaten to tar and feather and ride him on a rail. Davis, another Advent preacher, met two young men in the road near his house yesterday. He drew his knife, cut up their nets and forbade them to go near his house. The people are excited.

Woman Suffrage.

ST. LOUIS, May 9.—The National Woman's convention adjourned late to-night after, with one exception, the most successful meeting held by the association. The platform, an epitome of which was telegraphed last night, was adopted. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Elizabeth Cady Stanton; vice president, Susan B. Anthony; honorary vice presidents, Lucretia Mott, Philadelphia, Ernstine L. Rose, London, England, Clarine D. H. Nichols, Pomocala, Amy Post, Rochester, New York, Sarah Pugh, Germantown, Pennsylvania, Elizabeth Schenck, San Francisco, Amelia Bloomer, Council Bluffs, Caroline B. Windom, Washington; H. M. Tracy Cutler, Cobden, Illinois, Mathilde France, Milwaukee, Sarah E. Owens, Ypsilanti, Anna Ella Carroll, Pikesville, Mo., Mary T. Channing, Providence, Mary T. Shields, Colorado Springs, Colorado, Sarah E. Mall, Worcester, Mass., Sarah L. Williams, Toledo, Ohio. Charlotte Ovancleve, Memphis, Lucinda G. Chandler, Vineland, Mo., O. Brown, Olympus, W. T; corresponding secretary, Sara Andrews Spencer, of Washington; foreign corresponding secretaries, Curtis Bullard, of New York, J. G. Jones, of Chicago, recording secretary, C. G. Jones, of Chicago; treasurer, Miss J. H. Sheldon, of Washington; auditing committee, Spofford, of Washington; auditing committee, C. Riddell, R. M. Parnell, Ruth C. Dennison. A secret session for women only was held this afternoon, and to-night speeches by S. B. Anthony and Elizabeth Cady Stanton. The audiences have been very large. In the night meetings St. George's hall has been literally packed with the most intelligent and cultivated people in the city, gentlemen being in the majority. The delegates will stop over to-morrow, visiting the Merchants' Exchange at noon by invitation, and visit other notable places in the suburbs.

Illinois Endorsement.

SPRINGFIELD, ILL. May 9.—Dr. Collum today forwarded to President Hayes a long letter urging the veto of the pending bill to prevent military interference at elections. He expresses himself highly pleased by the states-manlike manner in the veto of the army bill and regards his position therein as an impregnable one. He says that, whenever the independence of the sengral departments fails to be recognized, then the despotism of either a monarchy or oligarchy ensues. It is remarkable that those lately in rebellion should have forced the issue on the president while owing their present position to the liberality of the loyal people of the Union. The governor reviews at length the arguments against abolishing war legislation, and concludes with the assurance on behalf of the people of Illinois that they believe they may rely upon the president to resist the threatened encroachments upon his prerogatives, and ask him to do it.

Colored Convention.

NASHVILLE, May 9.—In the national colored convention the committee on addresses made their report, and E. Gov. Pinchback in addressing the convention indirectly predicted the nomination of Grant, which was received with immense enthusiasm. Ex Congressman Rainey, of South Carolina, made a speech in which he alluded to the action of the Vicksburg convention, and declared the negroes were no longer trust to the promises of the southern whites, which had always been broken.

Homeopathic.

ST. LOUIS, May 9.—The homeopathic physicians continued their session to-day, and passed the time in reading papers and discussing them. A large number of papers on a great variety of subjects have been presented, many of material importance. Some half a dozen on yellow fever alone have been read and the discussion on them took a wide range and excited great interest. Minneapolis was chosen as the next place of meeting.

FOREIGN.

Electric Light.

LONDON, May 9.—The Metropolitan Board, after recent experiment on the Thames embankment, find that electricity costs two and quarter pence an hour per lamp more than the best gas, giving equal light. The report declares the effects connected with electricity must prevent its general adoption.

Result of the War.

LONDON, May 9.—A dispatch from Lahore announces that Yakoob Kahn accepted all the British proposals. These advance the frontier line so as give the British Kojulbut pass Pisheen valley, the Koram valley as far as Shuddagadan pass, and the Khyber pass as far as Lorgi. The British also gain the right to keep an agent at Candahar.

A Correction.

ST. PETERSBURG, May 9.—An official statement has been contradicting the news published abroad with reference to the affairs in Russia. It says Fort Petropanlevsky is wholly inadequate to contain 400 prisoners to say nothing of 4,700 which it was stated had been removed therefrom; that no prisoners have been removed from the fortress to Kazan; that the reported arrest of officers have not taken place; that since February only three officers altogether have been arrested and finally that no wholesale arrests on the frontiers have been made.

TELEGRAPHIC BREVITIES.

Ten illicit distilleries and five copper stills have been destroyed in Albert county, Georgia.

The house of Dr. Delos W. Southworth at Angola, New York, was burned yesterday. Dr. Southworth perished in the flames and his wife was probably fatally burned.

F. M. Ramsay, charged with killing one Lightfoot, was tried by the Federal court at Louisville yesterday on a writ of habeas corpus and discharged.

Richard Lee, the negro burglar, was publicly hanged in North Carolina yesterday. He confessed his crime on the scaffold and said he deserved death. The execution was witnessed by 2,000 people.

Two colored men, Tom Jones alias Sitter White, and Henry McLeed alias Cantelle, were hung yesterday at Appling, Ga. Jones killed a colored woman in '76. Jealousy impelled him into the crime. McLeed killed his son last November because he believed him guilty of stealing from him.

A race to decide the superiority of the champion scullers of Yale and Harvard took place yesterday at Lake Quinsigamond, the distance being two miles with turn. Goddard, Harvard's champion, won easily, beating Livingstone, of Yale, six lengths in 14 minutes and 30 seconds.

WASHINGTON NEWS.

The house committee has agreed upon a bill extending to the end of the present session the salary of the late Representative Clark.

Senator Williams yesterday introduced a joint resolution to make the appropriation of March 1st, '77, of $375,000 for the payment of ante bellum Southern mail contractors practically available.

There was a full meeting of the cabinet yesterday, but no important business was transacted. The chief topic discussed was the move of settlers towards the Indian Territory. The latest report to the secretary of the interior indicates that the movement has been exaggerated.

The subscriptions to the 4 per cent. refunding certificates since yesterday's report were $934,589. Owing to the demand being greater than the supply the treasury department is compelled to regulate the issue of refunding certificates to depositories. The sales in this city are getting out of all proportion to the amount of certificates which depositories elsewhere could receive, and to day no person was allowed to buy more than a hundred dollars in certificates.

FOREIGN NOTES.

Cholera is decreasing in India.

Duties on corn and flour entering Madrid have been abolished on account of the high price of provisions.

Russian Adjutant-General Obrutschoff has arrived at Phillipopolis and published the czar's proclamation promising strict compliance with the treaty of Berlin.

George Hamilton Price of the council said in the house of commons yesterday that he had not heard of trichina in American swine. The order of the council requiring swine from the United States shall be slaughtered at the port of landing after June 1st is in consequence of typhus fever.

There is a little lull in the Grant fever.

Secretary Sherman again looms as a presidential candidate.

We still wait for Santa Fe comments on the decision of the United States Court.

According to the News the Atchison road has been attempting to Rio Grandise another leased road in Kansas, and the Kansas road has plucked up courage to fight for its rights.

Encouraging news is coming from Washington regarding a Denver mint. The house committee will report in its favor, and Senator Hill may be relied upon to do good work in the senate.

Secretary Sherman's visit to Ohio has created great alarm in the democratic camp. If Sherman runs for governor it is well known by democrats that he will win even if opposed by Thurman.

A southern paper speaking of the veto said, "The democrats have thus far gained the victory." This reminds us of the celebrated "bonfire" dispatch sent by Solicitor Cast on the receipt of the Grand Canon decision.

If we remember aright the $2,500,000 subscription obtained on Wednesday by the D. & R. G. road is a little ahead of the famous red letter day last year in the history of the Atchison road, when $2,000,000 were subscribed.

Mr. Sherman would go into the presidential race with a splendid record. During this year he has placed $750,000,000 of four per cent. bonds, and thus saved $13,000,000 annually in interest on the public debt. This is the kind of record that takes with the country.

Late English statistics explain to some extent the cause of the present financial depression in Great Britain. The exports have largely fallen off since 1873, as may be seen by following table:

	1873.	1878.
Cotton manufactures	$388,000,000	$346,000,000
Woolen manufactures	88,000,000	104,000,000
Iron and steel	168,000,000	100,000,000
Coal and fuel	65,000,000	41,000,000
Linen	50,000,000	36,000,000
Machinery	50,000,000	33,000,000

This indicates a falling off of $260,000,000 in the exportation of six staples.

There has been some question as to who was the author of the last veto of President Hayes. Z. L. White, in the N. Y. Tribune, makes the following statement in regard to it: "Reports and surmises to the contrary notwithstanding, it is a fact that the message in its legal and all other respects, was written by Mr. Hayes himself. Its treatment of the subject was not known to several members of the cabinet until after the message had been sent to the house of representatives. When the cabinet met at the White House at 12 o'clock, the members were informed of the transmission of the communication, and were each presented with a printed copy of the message in pamphlet form."

While the army bill was under consideration in the house Mr. Blackburn said, "He who dallies is a dastard; he who doubts is damned." Senator Garland in the senate said, "In order that there might be no misunderstanding he would state that he would rather see the capitol crumble and given up to bats and owls and every ship of the United States rot at its moorings than yield an inch." The democrats since the veto have been quietly chewing the above words. That the course above suggested would be considered revolutionary is shown by the following advice from the Boston Post: "Further compulsory proceedings by the democrats to force the executive to carry out the decree of his party, to the extent of actual revolution seems unadvisable, and, it is presumed, will not be insisted on."

It has been frequently denied that there was any bull-dozing in the south. The discussion of the cause of the negro exodus has lead some of the southern papers to make some remarkably honest confessions. The Memphis Avalanche on this subject makes the following striking admission: "The lawless classes were but too ready to begin the dastardly work of persecution. They found it a certain means of suppressing the ballot. They inaugurated reigns of terror, shot and killed where shooting and killing became necessary, and so preyed on the fears of the unprotected blacks as to practically disfranchise them in every locality where the bull-dozing programme was adopted. And the Bourbon presses and publications, instead of demanding protection for all classes under the laws, pronounced all charges falsehoods, and at least indirectly encouraged the dastards to further deeds of violence. This is the truth, and the truth should be told."

The Albany Law Journal gives the following sensible opinion on the subject of corporal punishment in schools: "In State against Mizner, 45 Iowa, 248, it was held that a school teacher has the right, when necessary, to maintain discipline, moderately to chastise his pupils. In the same case, recently, again before the court, it was held that such chastisement, to be justifiable, must be for a definite offence which the pupil has committed, and that a failure to pursue to studies or to attend to the hours fixed by the rules, was not such an offence, and that whipping therefore was not justifiable. The remedy in such case the court thought was expulsion from the school. The right of a teacher to chastise in moderation a disorderly pupil is very generally recognized. But the above decision in Mizner's case usefully illustrates the fact that the law does not justify a brute, even though he happen to occupy the position of teacher, in assaulting his pupil without good and sufficient cause. In Vizard against Neate, recently decided by the Bath County Court, England, it was held that an ordinary school teacher and a Sunday school teacher were of the same footing so far as relates to the right of chastisement, and that this right extended the maintenance of proper discipline and order during a pleasure excursion or "outing." So far as we know this is the only case on this phase of the question."

We have recently spoken of the injustice of the arrears of pension act. The first thirteen applicants received the following amounts:

No.	Amount.
1	$4,625 00
2	406 00
3	435 33
4	1,147 50
5	228 00
6	407 33
7	1,416 40
8	1,040 33
9	810 33
10	1,091 66
11	883 60
12	1,076 00
13	1,256 55

This is an average of over $1,000 to each applicant. At this rates this bill take at least $50,000,000 from the treasury.

A Bad Practice.

"The practice of attaching general provisions to appropriations is an old one, and always a bad one. That it is not unconstitutional is proved by the practice, but we have deprecated from the beginning the attempt of the democrats at this time to remove by this method laws in themselves vicious and indefensible. If the democratic party on this occasion fails to remedy abuses which no man defends it has itself to blame, since it chose a time and manner by no means proper."—Richmond State.

An Independent Opinion of the Veto.

It goes to the merits of the matter in controversy, and claims for the federal government the right to use the army in aid of the marshals to protect voters and repress disorders at federal elections, or, in other words, to discharge duties which the democratic theory reserves to the state governments exclusively. We think there can be little doubt that on this issue the democrats will in the long run be beaten, though they will doubtless owe their defeat largely to the fact that the army is so small. They cannot make it appear that in its present dimensions it is dangerous as a police force, or is anything but a police force; nor can they convince people that the federal government needs no police force to execute its laws.—The Nation.

Titled American Belles.

As I look out upon the gay Boulevard des Capucines and note some fair faces in stylish carriages, dressing and recollect at once they were the admiration of a land, and also a very narrow American circle at home, and when I recall their native names, now lost under foreign titles, I am amazed at what the Cockney lad and lady in the play calls "the hups and downs." It is a source of much inward wormwood and gall to some of us to behold these fair ones lost to American citizenship and lolling under the French coronets. But love is sometimes blind and sometimes very much wide awake, and when the latter, not even a ducal or a baronial title will cause the most independent American republican girl to blink. Look at the list, even in my momentary memory of our "republican court" belles: The Duchess de Praslin-Choiseul is a charming, stately lady, well known in Baltimore society; the Countess Charette is one of a family whose name is a household word in Tennessee and identified with a polished period of a presidency of the United States when "grand and gracious manners marked men of court." No higher links of royal alliances can there be found in France than those of Mme. Charette by her French marriage, even if you look down the avenue of great personages as far as you will and back again to the venerable Duchess of St. James, the grandmother of Mme. Charette's step children. Yet those who can recall the person of our simple-hearted democrat, President Polk, little dream that on the banks of the Seine dwells his favorite niece, surrounded by the royalists of the Bourbon and Legitimist schools, and she the most charming of them all, crowned with womanly virtues, the true pride of an American lady. And from the "Crescent City" came a belle of rare qualities and womanly beauties, whose name, as the lovely Mme. de Damipiet, few of us will forget when refined taste and exquisite surroundings are the topics of our talk. I might say something of the Marchioness d'Hursele, of New York, and that old group of the Livingston-Power society, but for the present remain silent. I might also say something of another sister, who became the Princess Lanti and made a mark in society at Rome, but then I should have to speak of a third sister, who became the Marchioness Garriotti and the adopted daughter-in-law of the late Pope Pio Nono, and as I am not disposed to dwell on details, I simply allude to these names formally to show the attraction of our belles to the gallants abroad and point to the failures of our beaux at home. Here I might also say something of a lovely niece of the foregoing three ladies, who became the Countess Sala and graced the salons of Paris and Turin as well as Naples and Rome, but space forbids the pleasure. How much, in the way of challenging our home gallants, can be said when the names of the Countess de Damas and her sister, who married an Italian prince, are alluded to. Both in Baltimore and New York the family pedigree and pious family examples of these fair and fortunate ones is gratefully known. So, too, that of the Countess Montanban, and now that Miss Hungerford, of California, is added to the list of foreign-titled American belles, as I mentioned in my last letter, it is a source of some laudable and anxious curiosity to know who comes next? "Why," I say to my "Monumental City" fair companion, "do not some of our American men come over here and marry a princess or two, just by way of revenge?" She: "Do you see that little maiden with a big Normandy cap, dark blue stockings, bright colored kerchief and with her violet blue eyes and sweet, artless smile—even she would not marry other than a Frenchman!" Why have our girls not the same patriotism?—Paris Cor. of Baltimore Sun.

Red Pepper Theology.

The Noah's Ark Baptist Church (colored) of Louisville, tried one of its members for profanity the other day. Next to the pastor he was the most prominent man in the church—leader of the prayer meetings, superintendent in the Sunday school and preacher in the absence of the regular pastor. One brother testified that, as he was gwine to his work on Monday mornin' he heard a mouty racket, he did, down toward Brudder Jimson's, just like a whole lot o' men was a cussin' and a hootin' and flingin' de name oh de Lawd in vain at one anudder. "An' I says, says I, fo' God, what's dat? Is the communers riz up and broke loose? An' I crep' long up side de fence, I did, and kinder peeked over, and bless de Lawd ef I didn't see Brodder Jimson out dar in de garden by hisself, a swearin' an' a perfanitvin' an' a rippin' out oafs as ef de bery ole pandemonium had a-holt ob him." Other witnesses gave in similar testimony. The faces of the congregation reflected in lowering frowns the impending doom of Brother Jimson. The pastor asked if that gentleman had anything to say why he should not be expurified off'n de roll, and then Brother Jimson majestically arose and calmly said: "I would like to ax ef de Lawd didn't make red pepper?" The pastor replied that he did. "I would like to ax ef he didn't make it to be planted in de groun'?" The pastor said he did. "I would like to ax if he didn't make it to come up?" The pastor said he did. "I would like to ax if he didn't make it so as it will not come up if de pusson who plants it ain't a cussin' like blazes when he puts it in de groun'?" A sigh of relief fluttered from the congregation. The pastor scratched his head, eyed his big toe and then inquired? "An' was you a plantin' of pepper, Brudder Jimson?" "I was." "Well, sir, I renounces you not guilty. Dar ain't nuffin' de Bible at says a man shan't swar when he's a sowin' pepper, nohow," whereupon the meeting adjourned, and the members all shook Brother Jimson's hand. It is rumored that the witnesses who testified against him are to be tried next week for not knowing more about the doctrines of the church.—Courier-Journal.

Maria Antoinette.

Maria Antoinette is charmingly described in the "Souvenirs of Madame Vigee Le Brun," just published by Richard Bentley & Son, London. "She was tall," says the Madame, "admirably proportioned, plump, without being too much so; her arms were lovely; she had small and perfectly shaped hands, and charming little feet. She walked better than any other woman in France; holding her head very upright, with a majesty which denoted the sovereign in the midst of her court, without this majestic bearing detracting in the least from the sweetness and grace of her whole aspect. The most remarkable thing about her face was the brillancy of her complexion. I never saw anything like it."

Paris Newspaper Men.

Parisian journalists, says a British journalist, are a peculiar race of men who write what they think, and when they think little write nonsense. They have no fear of editors before their eyes, for they make their dignity consist in accepting no editorial touches whatever to their articles. When a Frenchman finds that he is getting too big for his particular journal, and is making its columns crack by the excessive exuberance of the matter which he puts into them, he starts off and founds a new daily paper of his own. He can always find an accommodating capitalist ready to lend him money in return for social prestige which the proprietorship of a newspaper confers. The bargain between them is summarily this: "You hand over the funds and I will supply talent; you content yourself with being the showman of our firm, and I will do the hard hitting; for the rest, your position as the owner of our journal will be a grand one, for you will get play orders for nothing, and be able to vent your animus against any of your enemies you may have in stinging little paragraphs, which I will touch up for you." There are about forty-five daily newspapers in Paris, and they have mostly been started by brilliant but impecunious journalists who concluded some such treaty as the above with men of capital—mostly bankers, merchants or retired tradesmen. It generly happens, after a time, that the journalist and his financial patron quarrel; then the newspaper is put up for sale, and the journalist, having become rich in his turn, buys out the capitalist, and devotes the remainder of his literary career to abusing him.

The First Despatch from Richmond.

It is safe to say, says the Philadelphia Weekly Times, that no message ever sent by telegraph was of such national interest as the one which Mr. William E. Kettles, then an operator in the service of the government in Washington, received from Richmond on the morning of the 3d of April, 1865. Mr. Kettles, then a mere boy of fifteen, but an expert operator, was working the Fortress Monroe and City Point wire at Washington. The Washington and Cherrystone operators were engaged on a long message, when suddenly both men were taken aback by what seemed to be a most foolish demand from Fortress Monroe: "Turn down for Richmond, quick!" Had a flash of lightning struck through the walls at that moment the shock could not have been greater than it was on the part of every man in that room. Such a thing as communication with Richmond, which had not been known since the beginning of the war, notwithstanding the frequent success of the Union army of late, was entirely out of the question in everybody's mind. Richmond, the stronghold of the south! Could it be a joke!

There was great elasticity in turning down the adjustment. There was trembling fingers while it was being done, and there was a gathering of many operators with curiosity, suspense and impatience combined to see what it meant. Sure enough! the signals of the operator in Richmond to the operator in Washington were bounding along the line. No signal was ever answered more promptly. Then came the question:

"Do you get me well?"

"I do; go ahead."

"All right. Here's the first message for four years:"

"RICHMOND, VA., April 3, 1865.

"Hon. E. M. Stanton, Secretary of War:

"We entered Richmond at eight o'clock this morning. G. WEITZEL,

"Brigadier General Commanding."

Mr. Kettles concedes that he copied the message, but he could never tell how. He remembers starting up from his chair and upsetting inkstand and instrument, and kicking over a tin can that sat in the fireplace, in order to make a noise; and rushed for General Eckert's room, where sat President Lincoln and Mr. Tinker, the cipher clerk, talking in a low tone. As Kettles was about to hand the message to Mr. Tinker the President caught sight of the words, and with one motion and two strides message and President were out of sight, on the way to Secretary Stanton's room. Mr. Tinker and everybody else were dumbfounded. Kettles quietly returned to his instrument, like one walking in a dream; proceeded mechanically to turn the inkstand right side up, and to straighten up his overturned machine. Then he sat down in his chair and stared straight before him in blank amazement. Around him were the other operators, every man alike flustered, and unable to get their minds back to their work or to utter connected words.

The Springs are situated at the mouth of Cottonwood Cañon, in a most beautiful country, salubrious atmosphere, surrounded by scenery of the most gorgeous description, being in the very heart of the Saguache range. Mount Yale lying to the north, and Mount Princeton to the south. The crystal waters of the Cottonwood River, abundant with trout, come dashing and sparkling down past the door of the Sanitarium from its fountain head, the eternal beds of snow which cap the hoary old mountain.

The following analysis, connected with six years' experience, warrant us in saying that they are a specific for catarrh, sore eyes, rheumatism, lead poisons, and all scrofulous affections.

A town site has been laid out at Twin Lakes.

Mr. Hogan, of the Leadville Eclipse, is in town.

Senator H. M. Teller, is expected home this month.

Twenty years ago yesterday John Gregory discovered the Gregory lode.

The Pinafore is to be given in Denver by amateurs. There is also some talk of a baby show.

Three thousand people blockaded the streets of Leadville the other day and waited three hours to see a foot race.

The East Pueblo people want water. We are glad to learn that there is a demand for this beverage in Pueblo.

One of the foremen of the New Discovery at Leadville has worked constantly under ground for the past thirty-six years.

The Rev. W. A. Hyde of Illinois has been called as pastor of the Cumberland Presbyterian church, and will begin his ministry to-morrow.

Mr. Willits has gone to Denver, to be absent four or five days. His map is put up in Mr. Barrett's real estate office. Everybody is invited to go and see it.

A large quantity of sea shells were unearthed in Larimer county the other day by some men who were digging an irrigating canal. An oyster mine would be better than Leadville gold.

Our plumbers are well furnished with all the accessories for utilizing our water supply. This is especially true in regard to all the appliances for watering lawns, etc. We have to acknowledge the receipt of a new spraying nozzle from J. W. Fairfield who has a most complete stock of such material. It is almost invaluable to those who are furnished with hose.

Was it Salted?

There are good reasons for suspecting that the original discoverer of what was reported to be carbonate deposits near Glendale, added to the value of his prospect by judicious salting. Both Mr. Roller and Mr. Moore who in good faith became interested with the discoverer have been quietly prancing around town in an ill humor.

They May Fat But Not Drink.

The Fort Collins Courier prints the following item: "Auntie Stone has on her list the names of thirty-one young men who, in consideration of a supper to be furnished by her, have agreed not to go into a saloon for two months, from the 17th of April last. Mrs. Stone desires us to say in this connection that the supper will take place on the 18th day of June next, at 7 o'clock p. m."

A Leadville Firm Fails.

The Leadville papers bring the particulars of the first important failure at the camp since the rush set in. This is the grocery firm of Sears & Co., who have made an assignment of their effects for the benefit of creditors to C W Sanborn, formerly of Denver. The firm attribute their failure to giving too much credit as well as to buying the bulk of their goods when freights were up to five cents a pound.

D. & R. G. Earnings.

The comparative earnings of the D. & R. G. road for April, 1879, and October and November, 1878, are as follows:

	After the 21st of the month.	For the month.
October, 1878	$41,271.85	$128,903.54
November, 1878	33,869.71	117,664.59
April, 1879	31,644.00	97,076.83

In this connection we may state that Mr. Bradley, the Atchison agent at Pueblo, stated to a Colorado Springs merchant a few days ago that the present carrying business of the D. & R. G. road is so great that at least 200 extra narrow-gauge freight cars will be needed. Under such circumstances it does seem strange that the earnings of the road should be less than they were last fall.

Diamond Drill Prospecting.

Considerable new excitement has been raised at Silver Cliff by the recent developments made by the diamond drill, which has been sinking on the Sheriff claim in the town proper. On Tuesday the drill, at the depth of two hundred and ten feet from the surface, entered a vein of solid galena, and at last accounts had gone into it about six feet. We get no assays from the core brought up the drill, but these will be made known in a few days. It is quite natural that this should create a vast amount of interest in this section. This method of prospecting seems destined to work extraordinary developments in the Silver Cliff region. It is cheap, rapid and effective, and the wonder is that the appliance has not been earlier and more generally employed.

H. L. PARKER, Prin.

Returning to the East.

We would call the attention of our readers to the advertisement of Mr. George C. Smithe announcing that the Franklin job printing office is for sale. Mr. Smithe desires to dispose of his business in order that he may return to Illinois to take charge of a newspaper there of which he has been the manager for the last twelve years. We regret the fact that business calls Mr. Smithe away, but hope that he will find the change in every way beneficial to himself.

A Tragedy.

The latent dramatic talent of this city is now in process of development under the most favorable circumstances. The following drama of contemporaneous human interest was rehearsed last night:

Scene: The east side of Tejon street between Huerfano street and Pike's Peak avenue. Time: Moonless midnight. Dramatis personæ: A belated pedestrian and an army of store boxes. The store boxes surround the pedestrian who, overpowered by numbers, is hurled to the earth and after nursing his bruises soliloquizes: Pedestrian ——

Blue fire and curtain.

Mr. Robbins Entertains.

Mr. D. W. Robbins entertained his friends last evening at supper, in his elegant new store rooms on Huerfano street. The building which has been erected by him is a credit to the town and a testimony to the enterprise and push of this energetic merchant.

The occasion of this entertainment was the completion of the business block in which it was given.

The gentlemen who enjoyed Mr. Robbins' hospitality sat down to the tables prepared by the ladies who were conducting the children's fair in the same rooms, and partook of refreshments served by these ladies. Mr. Robbins, with characteristic generosity, made his entertainment tributary to the missionary fund by entertaining his friends at the tables of the fair.

Camping on Ruxton's Creek.

The fact that parties of campers are pitching their tents on the banks of Ruxton's creek, from which stream the water works receive their supply of water, has caused no little anxiety upon the part of many of our citizens. Apprehensions have been expressed that the purity of the water will be defiled by these campers.

In order to relieve all of this apprehension, and to allay any feeling of discomfort, we would say that there is no danger of the anticipated evil results. The superintendent of water works assured us yesterday that no one would be allowed to camp above the flume that takes the water from the creek, and that a guard was on duty to protect the purity of the water. The superintendent has control of Ruxton's creek for five miles above the spot where the water is taken into the flume, and he will exercise his authority and prevent the fouling of the water.

The Children's Missionary Fair.

The Presbyterian Missionary Social, held in Mr. D. W. Robbins' new store room yesterday afternoon and evening, was a very pleasant and successful affair.

The children of the church presided at the tables and sold all sorts of interesting and useful things. In the evening the spacious rooms were brilliantly illuminated and the large windows were hung with a variety of attractive articles.

Iced cream, lemonade and other refreshments were served. The sidewalks in front of the rooms in which the fair was held were crowded with people who paused to look in upon the pleasant scene, and the man who thus hesitated was lost, for the attractions of the place were sure to prove too strong to be resisted, and in he would go. Once within those doors his purse would open almost spontaneously, and the missionary cause was proportionately benefited as the purse was depleted.

A considerable sum was secured by this fair, and a good time was enjoyed by all who attended it.

The Summer College Encampment.

The Summer College of the great central west has completed its arrangements for a summer encampment at Idaho Springs. From the circulars sent out by the superintendent of the college, the Rev. James E. Gilbert, of Topeka, Kansas, we are enabled to give our readers full information concerning the proposed enterprise. The Summer College has been organized by gentlemen of culture and piety, representing various Christian denominations. It seeks the mental, moral, and social good of all who desire recreation in the summer. It is under the direction of a board of council, representing seven states and territories. It will be in two departments, each holding an annual session.

The scientific encampment will be formed at Idaho Springs, Colorado, one of the most beautiful spots in the Clear Creek canon.

The encampment will be formed August 5th, 1879, the tents to be pitched on the broad, grassy lawn, to the east of the village, and at the base of the Snowy Range, one minute's walk from the railway, and two minutes' walk from the Springs. The camp will be furnished with a large tabernacle for the assemblages, a dining hall, and smaller tents for lodgers. The internal arrangements of the camp will be perfect, securing the property and comfort of all. At the tabernacle daily lectures will be given by eminent scientists from various parts of the country. In the intervals of lectures, jaunts may be made for pleasure or profit, under experienced guides. Three evening musical concerts will be provided. The Sabbath will be strictly observed, public worship being held in the tabernacle.

During the encampment, excursions will be made at low rates of fare by the Colorado Central Railway to Georgetown, Central City, Black Hawk and Boulder City, places of special interest, on account of the number and richness of the gold and silver mines being worked. On the 28th of July an excursion train will leave Denver by the South Park Railway for Leadville and other places of interest in that direction, returning by the opening of the encampment. After the encampment an excursion will leave Denver via the Denver and Rio Grande Railway for Colorado Springs, Manitou Springs, the Garden of the Gods, Pike's Peak, and other places of note in Southern Colorado.

Thus, under the auspices of the Summer College, a complete tour of Colorado may be made, beginning at the date of leaving home, in time to reach Denver by July 28th, and occupying about one month of time, broken by the sojourn in camp at Idaho Springs, the entire trip being under the best possible moral and social influence.

Money Changers in the Temple.

We hope the time is far distant when the beautiful and grand scenery of Colorado will be made a matter of barter and sale by our citizens. There is little doubt about the legal right of private individuals to prevent trespass upon their property, but the moral right of a man to lock up the beauties of nature and to demand a fee of all who desire to look upon them is not so clear.

We shall consider that an evil day when a toll taker shall stand in the gateway of the Garden of the Gods and demand a fee of all who enter that enchanted ground, and when a barrier is constructed at the entrance of Cheyenne Canon, and all who pass the portal of that grand natural cathedral must tip some mercenary verger.

All who have experienced the vexation of soul which the petty extortions at Niagara Falls invariably cause and who remember how their enjoyment of that stupendous falling torrent has been marred can imagine what a calamity it would be for like practices to prevail here.

It may be thought that reflections of this character are premature and unwarranted, but in view of the following facts which we find in the Boulder News and Courier:

"Last Sunday Mr. H. Boettcher and a friend from the east drove up Boulder canon, intending to visit Boulder falls. Arriving there, the gentlemen alighted, and on endeavoring to pass around a little shanty that has been erected there on the trail to the falls, were confronted by one Huggins, who claimed ownership and demanded a dollar each for the privilege of seeing the falls; and when they demurred endeavored to force his claim by leveling a revolver at them. They then withdrew, and Mr. Boettcher had the young man arrested. He was brought before Justice McKay on Monday and fined $5 and costs. The defendant claimed that he had a quit-claim deed from T. E. Harris, who entered the land two years ago, and that he was entitled to make such charge as he saw proper against all parties desiring to visit the falls. The judge decided that if he had enclosed the place with a fence and improved it, and given due notice of an intention to collect money for admission to the grounds, that he would have been entitled to pay, though he would not be justified in undertaking to collect it by means of a revolver."

Worth from a Barrel of Apples.

We are indebted to the Denver Tribune for the following instructive story:

Mr. A. Cohen, of Leadville, is now in the city. Mr. Cohen has a history in Leadville worthy of record. He turned up in the carbonate camp some three months ago. Possessing very little money when he arrived in the city, his pile gradually dwindled away until he had but $3.50 left. This was likely to soon disappear also. Cohen grew desperate, but not despondent. He determined to raise the wind or make a dead failure in the experiment. He went to a wholesale grocery store, and invested his little all in a barrel of apples, paying his $3.50 down, and obtaining credit to the amount of $1.50. He established himself on a much frequented corner. His success was electric. He began on his apples about 9 o'clock in the morning, and before the sun had set—and it sets early in Leadville he had sold out the entire barrel at ten cents apiece. He realized about $30, and when he paid his balance of $1.50 to the obliging wholesaler he was still well off. Day after day this business of apple selling was kept up, and the apples went off at a lively rate, as it may be imagined they did at that season. In a fortnight Cohen was a well-to-do man. His profits had been immense. He hired a stall. The business has grown into a large general fruit, nut and candy store and Cohen now employs assistants. Indeed, Mr. Cohen is now in the city on his way to Leadville from Texas. He realized enough money to make a trip to the Lone Star State, where he had formerly lived. He brings back with him a patent machine for brick making which is soon to be put in operation. With his two sources of income, Mr. Cohen will doubtless soon be a perfect nabob in point of wealth.

MINING NOTES.

There was shown the other day a certificate of assay of ore from Republican mountain, Clear Creek county, which gave 5,340 ounces silver or $5,870 per ton. The lode from which it was taken is a new discovery and is owned by G. Mack & Co.

The Jennie Ware lode, at Ten Mile, has struck it rich. A solid body of galena has been struck at a depth of ten feet. The ore was uncovered in grading for a cabin. The first assay was twenty-six ounces, the second one hundred and six and the third three hundred and fifteen. An offer of $50,000 has been made for the mine and refused.

The Wild Cat region is beginning to loom. This camp is located about six miles from the Cliff, in a southwesterly direction, and already has a population of from three hundred to four hundred, and steps have been taken to lay out a town there, to be called Dora City, the founders of which are confident that it will rival Silver Cliff within a year.

The Chronicle gives the result of a mill run of ore taken from the Pendery mine, at a depth of 195 feet, raised by a windlass, dirt and all. The ore was smelted at the sampling works of Messrs. Eddy & James, with the following result:

First-class Silver, 482 ounces. Lead, six per cent.

Second-class Silver, 88 ounces. Lead, six per cent.

THE CURRENCY QUESTION.

Notwithstanding the fact that thousands of our people are at present worrying themselves almost to death over this vexed question, even to the extent of neglecting their business, their homes and their duty to their families, there are still thousands upon thousands of smart, hard working, intelligent men pouring into the great Arkansas Valley, the Garden of the West, where the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railroad offers them their choice of 2,500,000 acres of the finest farming lands in the world at almost their own prices. If you do not believe it, write to the undersigned, who will tell you where you can get a cheap land exploring ticket, and how, at a moderate expense, you can see for yourself and be convinced.
